

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Craftlands Workshope Launch Trailer Reveal and Steam Game Festival: Autumn Edition

Banbury, Oxfordshire – 8th October 2020

With five days until launch, Excalibur are pleased to reveal the launch trailer for Craftlands Workshope, the whimsical fantasy shoppe management adventure amongst the clouds. Check it out here.

Craftlands Workshope will also be taking part in the Steam Game Festival: Autumn Edition with a demo available for players to get their hands on. The full version of Craftlands Workshope will be released onto Steam Early Access at 7pm BST (11am PDT) on the 13th of October. This is shortly after the Steam Game Festival: Autumn Edition ends meaning players will not have to wait long after getting their initial preview to have full access to the title. For players who earn those big bucks in the demo there is some good news! Progress earned in the demo will transfer over to the Early Access version of the game.

About Craftlands Workshope

From the out-there imagination behind the Shoppe Keep series comes a brand-new fantasy business adventure set in the clouds.

Craft your way to the top

A hastily scribbled note on Allcraft's door means you're now the proud owner of a dilapidated workshope. You know you're going to have to utilise your alchemy, cookery and blacksmith skills to get the sad old place back on its feet.

Sell your wares

It's all very well knowing how to craft items but your wares won't make you money gathering dust on your workshope floor. Luckily your slightly creepy acquaintances seem to want to help you out. Your own personal air skip? They're either unusually generous or they want something in return. Time will tell.

Master your crafts

The more you explore these outlandish islands, the more you realise things aren't as they appear. Becoming a master of three noble crafts and making a success of the workshope Allcraft kindly bequeathed you seemed like a worthy goal. But...it's starting to feel like your achievements are merely part of a much bigger story. Master every recipe and build every blueprint to fashion a key that unlocks an unknown realm.

Oh, and did we mention you can also pet a dog? What do you get for it? Nothing but their unconditional love. Why, what did you expect?
