

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Flashing Lights – Massive Content Update Brings New Weapons to Police Department

Banbury, Oxfordshire – 9th April 2019

The police, fire and EMS simulator game, Flashing Lights, today receives a brand new content update. New to the game's police department are weapons and a number of new and updated missions. As well as the new handgun and shotgun, developer Nils Jakrins has also added a variety of building interiors for players to explore in the game's open world. The entirety of Flashing Lights, including today's new content, is available in either single player or up to ten player multiplayer.

About Flashing Lights

Flashing Lights is a single-player and multiplayer emergency services simulator focusing on police, firefighters and emergency medical services. Enrolling with one of these departments, players will take on unique missions in an open world. Players will engage in desperate car chases, treat life-threatening injuries, and put out lethal fires. Each department has its own vehicles and equipment for players to utilise.
